

welcome to our latest newsletter

COVID-19 has had its effects felt in every corner of the world. The economic sectors and education sectors have been the worst hit here in Kenya. As Kivuli children cannot access online education, the social work team has been supporting the children with learning and revision materials. We are hoping that things will look up so we can go back to a sense of normalcy soon.

cooking classes

During the month of June, Anne held a zoom cooking class on how to make Kenyan flat bread – chapati. The class was a success with Anne demonstrating the steps and the participants following along at home to create some delicious flat bread. We are looking forward to more classes to come and participation from some willing chefs.

food support for needy families

Kivuli has continued to support families in the community that have been hit really hard by the economic effects of COVID-19 by distributing food parcels. This support goes a long way in ensuring sustenance during this difficult time. Kivuli children have also benefitted from this program in their homes.

covid-19 awareness progress

Kivuli staff have provided the families of the children and others in the community with locally made bars of soap. These have been distributed to enhance sanitation efforts such as hand washing, a primary prevention method of COVID-19. Key health messages have also been provided using posters to help the community understand how to prevent the spread of the virus.

jecinta's departure

Jecinta, our social worker who's been working at Kivuli for the past 15 months has left Kivuli. She has been a great force during Kivuli's transition programme. She will be joining the county's health team at the frontline fighting the coronavirus. She will be helpful to Kivuli in matters of children's health and the coronavirus response consultancy for Kivuli. We wish her all the best in her future endeavours.
